CO-OPERATION

IN A. S. OF E

W. R. Pierce, County Organizer, Makes an Appeal to The Farmers.

WARNS AGAINST LAWLESSNESS

Friends and Farmers of Breckenridge county.—It is a true saying that "procrastination is a thief of time," then it came to you through the papers, begging you with all the earnestness of a true Equity man not to procrastinate any longer while the A. S. of E. is at hand and accomplished wonders considering a partial organization. Now that Breckenridge county is behind all the rest of the Green river district is traceable direct to inaction.

Having been made your county organizer by the action of the last county union, my first and main aim will be to arouse people to a sense of action, and I feel that any effort I might put forth would prove futile without the co-operation of, at least, some of the good people. Will you co-operate with me to raise the banner of Equity in every nook and corner of our beloved old county? It seems to me that it would not be necessary to beg and plead with as noble a people as ours to do Equity or to join in an organization to demand their just dues. Single handed as the farmers have always gone at their business he is compelled to pay tribute to organization upon every hand. When we buy a self-binder we help to hold up the hands of the miners union and the various labor unions that every piece is compelled to pass through in its construction and every fellow gets a profit which is just and perfectly right in every branch of business. But when the farmer goes to market with any of the products of his labor he finds that he must sell in competition with every other farmer engaged in like business.

Thus was the case with the farmer of a few years ago, but the farmer of today has learned a lesson from the rest of the business world and has gone to making a price on the product of his labor and is doing wonders in this direction.

Now boys, there are no foes that can assail us from the outside, then be careful and patient, don't get up trouble among yourselves; lay down everything that would tend to divide you in any sense.

I hear some saying they will not sign the pooling pledge, now gentlemen, be careful along this line, that is just what the trusts want to hear you say. They have put out all sorts of false reports for the purpose of confusing you and causing you to do a thing you would long regret after it is too late. Now I know you don't want to kill the goose that laid the golden egg, but if you do, just dump your tobacco and she will surely die.

I hear some complaining about not selling the tobacco and say they will not pool if it isn't sold. Gentlemen, if we were in a battle with a foreign foe and the enemy almost ready to retreat, if we should just, all at once, stop fighting and say to that foe, now look here, if you don't surrender we will; do you think we would win the battle? No, of course not, neither will we win this battle if we surrender first. Then gentlemen keep at our guns and load them with the pooling pledges well signed up and the tobacco will sell.

It is a very reasonable conclusion that the pooled tobacco will not sell if they (the trusts) can buy all the tobacco they want on a competitive market. Then for God's sake don't let yourselves be deceived.

Yes, the trusts are offering some fancy prices for tobacco but what do they mean and what do they want? Do they want to buy the tobacco or the man? It is not the former, if it was why don't they go to the pooling houses and get all they want, that is sweet and nice, then they must be the latter.

Now gentlemen, I want to warn you against lawlessness. We learn that there has been some crimes committed in some sections of the State, but it has not been done under the auspices of the A. S. of E.

We do not think it is necessary to dig up plant beds and burn barns and the American Society of Equity don't stand for any such outrages and crimes, but on the contrary stands for everything that is noble, just and right for a more perfect civilization and a complete enlightenment of law and order.

In conclusion I want to again urge the importance of action, if you are meeting regularly in your local, go and call a meeting and call me

WILL REPRESENT ALL THE PEOPLE.

Col. Johnson Drops Political Sentiments in Opening
His Address.

WAS ENTERTAINED AT YOUNGER HOME.

As was expected, Col. Ben Johnson, Congressman from the Fourth District arrived here Thursday morning and was busy the entire day receiving friends at the St. George Hotel. This visit will probably be his last to Cloverport for some time, as he leaves for Washington in November.

At six o'clock a beautiful dinner was given in compliment to Col. Johnson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Younger. Plates were laid for six and several delicious courses were served.

The speaking took place at Oelze's hall at 7:30 P. M. and Col. Johnson was introduced by Prof. Edmond Wroe. In opening his address Col. Johnson dropped politics for a few minutes and said he would go to Congress not alone for the Democrats but for all the people. He further stated that if he could be of any service to the citizens of Cloverport anyway while he was in Washington he wanted them to be free to inform him. Col. Johnson continued his speech which contained his views of the Republican Platform and his advice to the Democrats everywhere. Immediately after the speaking a number from the audience shook hands with Col. Johnson and expressed to him their feelings for his success and welfare.

Henry Moorman Shot, Not Killed.

The report received here last week that Henry Moorman was killed in St. Louis was erroneous, and the following special was in the Louisville Times: "Henry Moorman proprietor of the Continental Creamery Company, of St. Louis, who was shot in that city by a revenue officer last Thursday night, has written to C. F. Moorman, his father, in Brandenburg, that he is recovering from his wound. Moorman mistook the officers for burglars and opened fire, which was returned and he received his wound. Moorman says he was arrested and taken to a hospital under guard, which was later withdrawn."

GENEROUS GIFT.

Col. Johnson Gives the Baptist Church a Neat Sum.

Last Thursday evening, after the Democratic speaking in Oelze's Hall, Congressman Ben Johnson held an informal reception and met a number of friends.

Several of Cloverport's handsome women were introduced to him, among them were some diligent workers of the Baptist church. Although Col. Johnson is a Catholic, he acted for a few minutes as though he were a Baptist, and gave Mrs. Thos. Tousey $50 for that church. Col. Johnson is known as one of the most generous men in the State of Kentucky. He has given neat sums to other churches in Breckenridge county.

Announcement.

The engagement of Miss Sarah Adelaide Gille, of Lexington, to Mr. Cleburne Earl Gregory has been announced. The wedding will take place some time in December. Mr. Gregory is a former Lewisport man, and is now business manager of the Henderson Journal.

AS TO THE LAW ON ISSUING TAX WARRANTS.

EDITOR NEWS:

The Attorney General is the chief law officer of the Commonwealth, and as such, it is his duty, upon the application of any executive or ministerial officer of the State, to give all such officers his opinion in writing touching any of the duties of his office. (See section 112 of the Kentucky Statutes.)

Auditor Hager, now the Democratic candidate for Governor, requested the Attorney General, under this statute, to construe section 24, article 8, of the new revenue act. This is that part of the law providing for tax warrants. In response to this request, the Attorney General filed a written opinion in regard to the law concerning tax warrants on December 13, 1906. Here is what he says in regard to the fees the County Clerk and Sheriff may charge:

"So we conclude the Clerk is entitled to a fee of 60 cents for issuing a tax warrant."

"If the Clerk indexes the warrants he is entitled to 10 cents for each name."

"The first clause fixes the fee (of the Sheriff) at 60 per cent. on the first $300 of the warrant and 3 per cent. on the residue."

Under this opinion of the Attorney General the legal fees are not exceeding 70 cents to the Clerk and 14 cents to the Sheriff. In this county the Clerk has been charging $1.50 as his fee and the Sheriff 50 cents as his cost. In other words, they have charged more than twice as much as the Attorney General says is legal. There were more than 2,000 tax warrants issued in Breckenridge county last year by the County Clerk. Figure it out yourselves and see what this iniquitous tax warrant law cost the tax-payers of this county.

THOMAS D. IRELAND DIES SUDDENLY.

Death of A Noble Man Brings
Deep Grief—Was A Soldier
In Time of War.

Skillman, Ky., Oct. 22.—(Special.)—In the death of Thomas D. Ireland, Hancock county has sustained the loss of one of its most influential and noble citizens. His death, which occurred Monday, October 21, was a great shock to every one in his family and this community. Being a man of much push and energy, he worked too hard on Wednesday and was over heated, then cooled off very quickly which gave him a chill and in a very short time had to take his bed. Pneumonia set up and death resulted in less than four days.

Mr. Ireland was born in Galatin, county, near Warsaw, Ky., on the Ohio river, Oct. 21, 1837, making him 70 years of age the day of his death. He spent his early life in the hills of old Galatin, and many were his ups and downs according to the story of his life. When he reached manhood and the long-to-be remembered days of the early Sixties came on, he joined the Southern army under Helm's command in the Third Kentucky Cavalry. He fought bravely for four and a half years until the close of the Civil war.

He was married to Miss Adda Hobbs, of Warsaw, on Sept. 17, 1867. Into this union seven children were born: one of who survive him with his wife, one daughter having died in childhood. The following are the names of those living: Mrs. Curtis Williams, of Evansville, Mrs. Leon McGavock, of Cloverport, Mrs. Robt. Brown, of Warsaw, Emory H., of Evansville, Benton, who is at home and Hughes, now in school at Lexington.

As a father, husband and neighbor, these was none better or more loved than he and one was never in his company but what he was bettered in some way by it. Words would fail to tell of all his good deeds but the best of all he was a christian man of the highest type and eternally alive will remain.

The funeral will take place Wednesday at the M. E. church at Hawesville at 1 P. M., after which the remains will be laid to rest in the Hawesville cemetery on the hill by the Masonic order of which he was a member.

The Miracle of the Pelargonium.

By INA WRIGHT HANSON.

Copyright, 1907, by W. M. Cunningham.

We were at the Big Tree grove, little eastern bred Muriel, with pelargoniums at her slender waist, and I, a western writer. We had wandered through the inner grove, where the most mighty monarchs are—the Giant, General Sherman, Jumbo, the Sisters and others. We had revelled at the contrasts between trees 300 feet high and the cream cups and other sweet spring flowers nestling at their feet. Then we had gone through the gates into the outer forest and were sitting at the river's edge at the end of the

"THE MIRACLE OF THE PELARGONIUM!" swinging bridge. The rest of the party stayed away. We were to have this little goody hour apart.

"The Giant is 305 feet in circumference, 300 feet high and is estimated to be 3,000 years old," chanted Muriel in the words of the guide. "Or was it 5,000? Three thousand or 5,000? Oh, dear! Must I always refer to my notebook? Can I tell nothing without always referring to my notebook?" she demanded wildly.

I took the notebook from her. "Your lips were not made for facts, dry as dust. They were made for—"

I had intended to say for poetry and romance. I truly had, but, chancing to look at those lips, so red, so dimly curved, so wondrously alluring, I said "kisses," and I proved my assertion. No man could have helped it.

Of course she was very angry. I suppose I would not have had her otherwise, but she did not spring to her feet and run from me.

"I will not apologize for you know I want you so, Muriel," I pleaded. She regarded me scornfully.

"As I have told you before, I will not mate with a dreamer. Why do you go into the world and do some mighty work? Everybody—"

"Everybody works but father?" I interrupted politely.

Even with my heart sore I could never help laughing at Muriel and her fine talk of workers—little dainty wife of a creature, born to be worshipped and cared for, but taking so serious a view of life!

"Would you have me a husband?"

I asked. "As it is, I dream, and my dream makes a book, and the book brings some dollars, and the dollars make several things possible. If I were a bookmaker it would be simply dollars, though perhaps fewer of them, so the result is approximately the same, and you have no idea how much pleasanter it is to dream than to carry bricks."

"You are a trifler," she declared. "You ought to write a book which will make the world better."

"I am quite sure my books never hurt anybody's morals or manners," I flattered gently.

"That's a negative virtue," she responded. "The man I marry must be positive. He must look—"

She hesitated, gazing down at her Lady Washington flowers, which she had taken from her belt.

"How?" I asked, with some interest. "I don't deny that I should be willing that he should look like you," she admitted, a fine color coming into her cheeks. "If only you would do something to make the world better?"

My mood had changed. I would plead no longer with this child. My mind went to the packet of letters I counted as among my treasures. They had come from different parts of the country after my first book had been launched. According to them, my mission was not a failure; my work, though a simple one, had made better at least a part of the world, but I would not tell Muriel this. I would try to induce her to lead a more sane and held out my hand. In the distance the train was whistling.

"One thing remember, dear child," I said gravely, "and that is that love biases its own paths and cuts its own channels. If I be written that you are for me you will marry me in good time. Love brooks no interference in his realm."

Her cheeks stormed into color as I held her to her feet.

"Do you see this Lady Washington?" she demanded, holding the pelargonium before me. "See, I lay it in the hollow of this little big tree. There is a dirt in the hollow, and the pelargonium may grow. Coming again, I may find that it has taken root. So may I become your wife. The one is as possible as the other."

So Muriel went back to the east with her schemes of philanthropy, and I stayed in my wistful dream and then to write, but I found that dreaming had grown to be a weary task when the most beautiful one of them all was a forbidden one, for I had lost faith in my own brave avowal of love's omnipotence.

Nearly a year had gone before I visited the Big Tree grove again. I went alone and took the solitary way to the river where I had said goodbye to my dream of dreams. A furious storm had wrought some havoc there. Two or three of the lesser trees had fallen, and the swinging bridge had been twisted and broken and thrown upon the bank, while the swollen river raged angrily by it.

I went straight away from my sad retrospection. My eyes caught a glimpse of blue in the distance, and, somehow I thought of Muriel's dress as it lay on the ground.

It lay on the ground, and I knew she had not been kind. But just then I was joined by the guide, who was quite a friend of mine. He had discovered a new plant and was naturally quite enthusiastic over it, so I went into the inner grove to view the discovery. After I had left him I still had a half hour before train time, so I went back to the broken bridge.

Again were my eyes caught by the glimpse of blue, and I saw that a woman was kneeling before one of the little big trees.

"Each to her oak the beauteous dryads shrink," I murmured. "If oak could have dryads, why not redwoods?" I asked myself, and the trees took her head and looked at me I started toward her.

"Muriel!" I cried, yet still half believing that it was but a beautiful vision. But she sprang to her feet, her white face glowing pink and her wet eyes holding a sweetness I had never seen before. She pointed toward the hollow of the tree.

"Look, Armand, the miracle of the pelargonium!"

There, in the little sitting of dirt, even the Lady Washington, not very was alive. Her words came back to me.

"I might leave this flower here and, coming again, find that it had taken root. So might I become your wife. The one is as possible as the other."

I held out my arms. She hesitated, and her color deepened.

"Don't think me bold, Armand. I didn't come seeking you. My mother is not well, and I came with her. I came."

"You came because the love God sent you, sweetheart. I finished for her. Now, come the rest of the way to the arms which may never let you go again."

Shy in her love, pining with life, glowing with happiness, she came to me. My dream came true.

"The east and the west are met together," I said. "Now I think I can write the book which will make the world better."

"Don't begin it just yet," she whispered, with her soft cheek against mine. "Let the world wait till you have loved me awhile."

Fifty Years a Backsmiter.

Because you have contracted ordinary colds and recovered from them without treatment of any kind, do not for a moment imagine that colds are not dangerous. Everyone knows that pneumonia and chronic catarrhs have their origin in a common cold.

Consumption is not caused by a cold but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germs that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by Severe Drug Co.

Better Unknown.

Into the part of the great factory crept the ragged urchin, while the owner of the establishment watched him from the doorway.

Presently the urchin bent down and picked up a piece of string. This moved the heart of the merchant prince and he stepped forward.

"My lad," he said, "I have a vacancy for an office boy at 10 shillings a week. If you like I'll give you the job, for I'm sure you will be a nice, careful boy. I've you pick up that string and a boy who is careful in big things will be careful in big things. It is a bargain!"

"Yes, but as the urchin sped home to tell his mother about his good fortune he muttered darkly:

"If he only knew that I picked up that string for a tin to his dog's tail!"—London Tit-Bits.

Dead Letter Office Mail.

A traveling man received the following telegram from his wife:

"Twins arrived tonight. More by mail."

He went at once to the nearest office and sent the following reply:

"Leave for home tonight. If more come by mail, send to dead letter office."

More Than They Wanted.

On his trip homeward by trolley a tired business man was annoyed by three middle aged ladies who stood near him. They seemed determined that he should offer one of them his seat.

He screened himself behind his paper and listened to plainly audible remarks about the time of gallantry. This grated on his nerves, so he arose and, with a profound bow, addressed the three.

"Will the oldest of you ladies honor me by accepting my place?"

Whereupon they became interested in the advertisements over the windows, and the man resumed his seat.—Ladies Home Journal.

Slightly Missed.

An Australian traveling in Japan fell into a mixed company in which were an English girl and an American woman. He made his remarks agreeable to the American at the start, she relates in her account of "A Woman Alone in the Heart of Japan," by remembering that the Americans are accustomed to ride over Niagara falls in tubs. Then he switched to the war of the Revolution.

"The whole thing was," he said, "that the colored soldiers of the British troops to aid her in a foreign war, so the motherland resolved to subdue her naughty children."

"I guess you have confused it with the war in Africa," said the American. "The Boer war has been so long drawn out you thought it was the same as the American Revolution."

The little English girl saw there was a misunderstanding somewhere.

"There was something about stamps in it," she suggested meekly, "that caused some of the trouble."

"Something about stamps came a revolution," demanded the Australian.

"Do you see a stamp on a letter or postage stamp? Does the rage for collecting exist in those days?"

But no one enlightened him on this, and he was left to assort history to suit himself.

Remarkable Demand.

The unprecedented prosperity of the country has brought about a new and increased demand for competent services. In fact, it is now impossible to supply this demand. The Bowling Green Business University is getting something like twice as many calls for its graduates as it is able to supply.

Now is an opportune time for young people to enter business life. Free literature, giving full information, can be had by applying to the Business University, Bowling Green, Kentucky.

Still He Wouldn't Reform.

This curious tale of old time spiritism is taken by Robert B. Bates' (1815-1901) "Historical Discourse on Apparitions." There is now in London an understanding, sober, pious man, one of my best friends, who is a gentleman of considerable rank, who having formerly seemed pious, of late years does often fall into the sin of drunkenness. He often goes long together here in his mother's house, and whenever he is drunk and has slept himself sober something knocks at his bed head, as if he were rapped on the wall. When they remove his bed it follows him. Besides other loud noises on other parts where he is, that all the house hears, they have often watched him and tied his hands lest he should do it himself. But his mother declared that he had seen his shoes under the bed taken up and "nothing visible to touch them." The drunken sinner refused in spite of these solemn warnings to abandon his evil ways.

Short Names.

An English clergyman, Dr. Frederick Lee, had a prejudice against a long string of Christian names and held that if such names were proposed the clergyman should alter them at baptism whether the parents were willing or not. It was said of him that he christened all his children after him.

"The author of 'The Life of Walter Pater' gives Dr. Lee's method of christening, and says:

"Name this child," he would say in his authoritative voice.

"Archibald Chalmersley Constancia Ferdinand," perhaps the mother would whisper.

"Frederick," she would hear, to her amazement, and then would follow the formula of baptism.

In the vestry of course there would be objection.

"This child," Dr. Lee would reply, "will have to get his living in the world, and what do you want to handicap him with Archibald Campbell Chalmersley and all the rest of them for? Anyhow, it's done now and can't be altered."

Accidents will happen, but the best regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for such emergencies. It subdues the pain and heals the hurt.

"That'll be quite a swell wedding at your home tonight," said the old friend to the family. "Of course you'll give your daughter away."

"No," replied the girl's father, "I shall only be leading her to live with me. They'll be back to live with me."—Philadelphia Press.

Avoiding Direct Testimony.

The wealthy parishioner had with him his pastor, and miles of road were thrown into clouds of dust by the plunging automobile.

"Halt!" commanded the officer, but no more attention was given to him than to the titling telephona poles. Over those poles, however, sped a message, and at the next crossroads a barrier was encountered and also another representative of the law.

"Not only did he break the speed law," complained the constable when the party had assembled in court, "but he also told me to go to the devil."

"You lie!" thundered the wealthy parishioner. "I never use such language."

"We must protect our officers from profanity," intoned the justice. Then, turning to the clergyman, "Perhaps this gentleman, who will not make a mistake, will tell us whether or not the devil was mentioned in this controversy."

"Your honor," pleaded the clergyman, "I and my brethren refer to the Satanic majesty so frequently that any additional allusion to him would not impress itself upon me sufficiently to remember the incident."—New York Press.

PERIODS OF PAIN

While no woman is entirely free from periodic suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Irregularities and pain are positive evidence that something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to serious derangement of the feminine organism.

Thousands of women, have found relief from all periodic suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, and is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science.

It cures the condition which causes the most distressing irregularities of the female system. For the derangement of the system, the Compound of either Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1907

$15,000 FROM TOBACCO TRUST.

The following editorial is taken from the Georgetown Times an old substantial Democratic paper published in Georgetown, Ky.:

"Beckham is making a plea to the country people on the temperance question, but he has never explained how the managers of his campaign sold out the country people, body and soul, to the American Tobacco Co. for $16,000. Beckham lays great stress in his speeches on some things the senate investigating committee did and said, but he is silent as the tomb about this fact which was brought out by the committee. Will the country people vote for a man who allows his campaign managers to take $16,000 from this great corporation that the farmers are fighting? There is not a farmer in Kentucky but who feels that he is oppressed by this great tobacco corporation, and yet when any one in the Legislature wants legislation in favor of the tobacco grower the Beckham henchmen always passed the word down the line that they must not be hurt, because they put $15,000 in the campaign fund. The only law which ever protected the tobacco grower was the McCoin law, and yet Governor Beckham had his friends to repeal it and say to the tobacco grower that the buyer could steal ten pounds out every hoghead and not pay a cent for it. Truly a great reformer to appeal to the farmers of Kentucky."

We understand that Dr. Foote is pledged to vote for Beckham for Senator. Is this true Doctor? If so, what do the tobacco raisers of this county think about supporting a candidate for Representative who will vote to send to the Senate a man who accepted $15,000 from the tobacco trust and who is thus under obligations to favor the worst enemy of the farmer? Think about these things before you cast your vote.

HOW DOES DR. FOOTE STAND?

The Republican candidate for Representative issued a statement to the public a month ago to the effect that he would not use any money nor whiskey to buy the election, or authorize or permit it to be done for him by others. The people want to know your position on this question, Dr. Foote. You have had three weeks to inform the voters how you stand. They want to know if you are going to permit others to use money or whiskey, or both, to buy votes for you? Let the people have a clear, positive statement from you on this point. Let us have a clean, fair election this November. It is up to you, Dr. Foote.

THAT GAME OF BASE BALL.

Mr. Haswell, who was the clerk of the last Fiscal Court, informs the News that the statement that Judge Moorman adjourned this court to play ball, is incorrect, in-so far as its adjournment for that purpose. We made the statement upon what we thought to be reliable information, as we saw two or three of the members attending the Institute, some on the streets and the Judge at the ball game, and we took it that our informant knew what he was saying was true. Though the Democrat has misrepresented us frequently, we do not desire to injure its editor, and we gladly make this statement.

If you are a Democrat, and believe the best interests of your State will be served by voting that ticket, do it. It is your right and you should exercise it as a true American citizen. But if your conscience tells you that you cannot serve your state, your county, your community, by voting the Republican, Prohibition or Socialist tickets, it is your duty as a good citizen to vote that way. We have no quarrel with any man who casts his own vote and casts it for the party or the man of his choice. What we want and what every fair-minded man wants, is clean voting—free from the influences of the party bosses and his henchmen.

Watch the boss henchmen. They are on the grounds now planning and scheming to carry the election and do the boss' dirty work.

Using money and whiskey in our elections must be cut out.

If you believe in clean elections in the elimination of money and whiskey you should see to it that none is used in your voting precinct by either party.

For every Democrat who votes the Republican ticket the "Boss" says he can take $2.50 and buy a "nigger" in his place. He may buy a "nigger" but never a Negro.

It ought to be, and is a great privilege to vote. No higher mark of good citizenship is given the man who walks into his booth and casts his vote for the party or the man of his choice. We can uncover our head to any man who does it. We say vote and vote your sentiments.

There is no place in this county for the man, or any combination of men, who set themselves up as censors. Free speech, a free press, freedom of conscience, liberties which come down to us from our forefathers, are sacred to every citizen and must not be interfered with.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure, sold by Druggists, 75c.

SOCIETY IN CLOVERPORT.

The falling autumn leaves have awakened the listless dreamers and started them a working, a going and a laughing. In fact, the whole social atmosphere seems to be astir; even Cloverport, is very gay. This a dinner, a club meeting or a pay church supper; at least, something of the kind, every afternoon and evening, and the young mothers and their daughters do not stop until the fire is kindled at twilight to relieve the chill of the October evenings. Among the most pleasant affairs of the week were: Mr. and Mrs. James Younger's dinner in honor of Col. Ben Johnson; the meeting of the Girls' club at Miss Grace Plank's home and Mrs. Haynes entertainment in honor of Mrs. Young, of Morganfield, and Mrs. D'Huy, of Evanston, Ill.

MRS. BOWNE ENTERTAINS.

Mrs. Edward Bowne gave a smart and delightful afternoon party Friday. Progressive games were played and five tables were used. One lady progressed because she threaded the most needles and another got her hand-painted tally card punched for naming the most chicks. However, Mrs. L. T. Reid carried off the prize. Dainty refreshments were served and a most enjoyable time was had by the guests who were: Misses Georgia White, Margaret and Lizzie Skillman, Ruth Haynes, Francis Smith, Josie Pitt, Lucy McCracken, Irene and Annie Jarboe, Jennie Warfield, Kate Oglesby, Jane Hambleton, Mesdames L.T. Reid, Wickliffe DeHaven, Frank Payne, John Jarboe, W. H. Bowmer, Fred Perry, Abe Skillman, Eugene Haynes, Hyne Severs, Ed. English.

Mrs. F. N. D'Huy, of Evanston, Ill., and Mrs. Young, of Morganfield, were guests of honor at a forty-two party Saturday at the home of Mrs. Eugene Haynes. Mrs. Haynes was assisted in entertaining by her charming daughter, Miss Ruth Haynes.

There is one young girl in Cloverport who might become famous as a cake baker if she keeps on. She is a tiny pup to stand on her tip toes to get things from the pantry shelves, but she can make big cakes that simply melt in your mouth. Any kind from angel's cake to devil's food, the little cook can stir up to suit a king's taste; so if you do not know who she is, it will pay to look her up, especially if you are cake hungry.

LUCKY THIRTEEN.

The Girls' Club which was called week before last by Miss Lula Severs, had its second meeting at the home of the Misses Plank Wednesday and will be entertained this afternoon by Miss Rebecca Willis. The club will be known as "The Lucky Thirteen" this season in accordance with the number of the members who are: Misses Grace, Evoca and Edith Plank, Jennie Harris, Rebecca and Martha Willis, Lula Severs, Margaret Moorman, Annie Jarboe, Ray Heyser, Margaret Burn, Edna Jarboe and Louise Babbage.

Mrs. Lucy Temple has returned to Owensboro where she will make her home with her brother, Mr. J. W. Lafoe whose marriage to Miss Annie Chambers, of Lewisport, took place last week. During Mrs. Temple's visit in Cloverport, she was the guest of Judge and Mrs. J. H. Willis, and was extensively entertained by her friends here.

Society is a strange circle and many mysterious things go on therein. It has little schemes like cob webs, so finely woven that they can hardly be felt or seen, but they are there just the same. Sometimes the largest ones are broken within a moment. Just the other day a hostess had her table set for eight and at the appointed hour one of the guests walked in with two friends whom he had taken the privilege to invite without giving the hostess any fore word. Even the host got uneasy, but it came out all right; at least the luncheon did. The blue points were re-arranged and the cook made the courses good for ten instead of the invited number. "Just bringing them in" is an old custom, but fashion shuts the door on it now. When plates are laid for eight the caterer means eight and no more.

DELIGHTFUL BOAT PARTY.

Mr. B. L. Daniels took a number of friends to Cannelton, Ind., Sunday in his gasoline launch. His guests were: Messrs. Howard, Conley, Chas. Howard, Tom Faith, Tom Perry, Raymond Pate and Dr. Frank Hook.

The Ladies' Reading Club was entertained by Miss Kate Oglesby last week, and will meet at the home of Mrs. C. W. Moorman tomorrow afternoon.

Beating the Bryans.

By LESTER CORNING.

Copyright, 1917, by C. H. Nuttall.

"That woman is back again," snarled Mrs. Paulding. Her son smiled. "That" woman was not any other than Mrs. Bryan, the only person in Glendale who dared challenge Mrs. Paulding's pretensions to social leadership.

"They got in last night," said Fred mildly. "They had three weeks at the above, two weeks in the mountains and a month in New York. They brought back a lot of things from there."

"And where did you get all this information?" demanded Mrs. Paulding in her tones.

"Nancy," said Fred promptly. "I met her down at the postoffice and walked part of the way home with her."

"I wish you would remember that I do not like to have you speak to that loud person," said Mrs. Paulding frostily. "Mrs. Beeman had the audacity to ask at the sewing circle the other afternoon if you were engaged to Nancy."

"There doesn't seem to be a chance for such luck," said Fred gloomily as he rose from the table. "Every time I ask her she reminds me how our respective mothers-in-law would love us."

"Every time!" echoed his astonished mother. "May I ask how many times you have lowered your dignity by proposing to that impudent girl?"

"About a hundred," was the easy response. "One of those days I'll catch her off her guard and she'll say 'Yes.'"

"I hope I may never live to see the day," said his mother dolefully.

"I hope you do," he said, with a laugh, as he bent and kissed the tightly compressed lips. "You'd like her, wouldn't you? You didn't hate her mother so?"

Fred slipped out of the room, and his mother could hear the rumble of his laughter as he crossed the broad hall. For a time she sat with compressed lips as she pondered the situation. Until two years before she had quitted it over the dilemma set both by virtue of her husband's business and political importance and because of her own skill as an entertainer. Then the new pulp mill had been started at the upper dam, and hereafter Mrs. Bryan brought his family to live in Glendale.

From the first the two women had crossed swords. Mrs. Bryan, who had busily followed other leaders in the city, now asserted her right to the title in the small town, and by the brilliancy of her entertainments she had very nearly wrested social supremacy from her established rival before Mrs. Paulding had realized what was going on.

Her own entertainments became more ambitious, and for the last year the advantage had lain first with one and then the other. To have Fred fall a victim to Nancy Bryan was the worst blow she had sustained, and had she known that Nancy's mother was as furious as she at the turn of affairs had taken she would have derived small comfort from that fact. In blarneying of Mrs. Bryan's state of mind, she elected to believe it a move of that detesting woman.

To add to the discomfort of the situation, she heard during the day that Mrs. Bryan was to celebrate her return by a garden party of unusual pretentiousness.

A number of her city friends were to make up a house party, and there was to be dancing on the lawn and the music of an orchestra famous through the state.

In her calmer moments Mrs. Paulding would have waited for revenge. But Fred's admission of his love suggested her so that she lost her usual courage and announced a party for the same afternoon and evening. She engaged a brass band for the promenade parade and arranged for a troupe of Arabian acrobats to perform on the lawn.

Glendale society was shaken to its foundations, and as each move was communicated to the other contestant through the medium of officious friends some new feature was added as an offset until it seemed that nothing short of the engagement of a circus could definitely settle the matter.

It was in this frame of mind that Mrs. Paulding approached her son.

"You know that automobile you wanted?" she began at the breakfast table. "I'll get it for you if you can give me some feature that Mrs. Bryan can't possibly get for her party. That woman has cornered every idea I have originated so far."

"To you give me cars like that?" he demanded, "as much as you like?" she murmured.

"And you won't ask what it is until I spring it?" he stipulated.

"I promise," she said. "I may rely upon you, Fred?"

"For the sensation of the season," he assured, "take heart of grace, mother mine. I am planning to shake Glendale to its very foundations."

Much relieved, Mrs. Paulding hurried to confide to her dearest friends that she would have a sensation that could not be equaled. This in due course was communicated to Mrs. Bryan, who worried much; but, since Mrs. Paulding did not herself know the nature of the surprise, she could not betray Fred's plans.

The day of the "double header," as Paulding irreverently referred to it, dawned bright and beautiful, and by 2 o'clock the festivities were under way. There were circus performances on both lawns, and honors seemed fairly even. Mrs. Paulding went about with a smile of confidence upon her face and with skillful references to her surprise kept curiosity up to pitch. The afternoon passed without the appearance of the surprise, and the dusk had gathered before Fred disappeared, and was passed that he had gone to engineer the great event. An hour later the Paulding butler sought his mistress, and she vanished into the house.

She found Fred in the library, and with him was Nancy Bryan.

"I want to introduce you to the sensation," said Fred, with a laugh, as he led the girl forward. "Nancy, as he is married half an hour ago."

"And this is your surprise?" she gasped.

"Could you have a greater one?" he asked. "Every one knows of the rivalry between you and Mrs. Bryan. If you turn your party into a wedding reception you'll beat Mrs. Bryan to a standstill. You've been bragging about your surprise. You pretend you know it was coming all along, and the laugh is on Mrs. Bryan."

For a moment Mrs. Paulding hesitated. In some ways it was a little pill to swallow; but, as Fred had shown her, it was necessary to make the best of the situation. She stepped forward and took the bright-faced girl in her arms.

"My dear," she said sincerely, "I am very glad to welcome my son's wife to her new home. Let us go out on the lawn. I will introduce you to my friends."

She turned toward the door, but passed us down the street there came the sound of a marching band.

"What is that?" she asked—"more of the surprise?"

Paulding nodded his head. "It's the people from the Bryans coming to congratulate the bride!" he exclaimed.

"Mr. Bryan was with us, but went home to tell his wife and invite the crowd over here. You have swallowed me."

"Nancy and I were married half an hour ago."

FURIOUS ITCHING HUMOR OF CHILD

Bleeding Sores Covered Her Whole Body After an Attack of Measles—Nursed Every Night for Three Weeks—Nothing Helped Her.

THEN CUTICURA MAKES COMPLETE CURE IN 5 DAYS

"It is in my opinion my duty to join those who praise the Cuticura Remedies. After my granddaughter of about seven years had been afflicted with the measles, she was attacked about a fortnight later by a furious itching and painful eruption all over her body, especially the upper part of it. For many days she was unable to sleep, and we nursed her every night, using all the remedies we could think of. Nothing would help. I then remembered having heard so much about Cuticura Remedies. We sent for them and after twenty-four hours we noted considerable improvement, and finally, after only one complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, in five consecutive days the little one, much to our joy, had been completely cured, and has been well for a long time. Two Foolish Situations.

A farmer went into a hardware store and while purchasing some tools was asked by the proprietor if he did not want to buy a bicycle.

"A bicycle won't eat its head off," said the farmer, "and you can ride around your farm on it. They're cheap now, and I can let you have one for $15."

"I'd rather put the $35 in a cow," replied the farmer.

"You'd look mighty foolish riding round your farm on a cow," said the hardware man sarcastically.

"No more foolish than I would miking a bicycle."

A Sure Cure.

He was very sick, and his doctor told him that he had to change his mode of living and prescribed "going to bed early, eating more roast beef, drinking beef tea, a month's rest at some quiet watering place and just one cigar a day." A month later the invalid met the doctor, and the latter complimented him on his improved appearance.

"Yes, doctor," said the patient, "I look better because I am better. I went to bed early, ate more roast beef, spent a month in the country and took great care of myself, but that one cigar a day nearly killed me, for I had never smoked before."

Washington and Teacher Differed.

The teacher was announced the birthday of Feb. 22 and asking them questions concerning its observance, among others, why the birthday of Washington should be celebrated more than that of any one else. "Why," she asked, "more than mine? You may tell me," she said to a little fellow eager to explain.

"Because he never told a lie!"

The After College Girl's Complaint.

A lady was calling on some friends one summer afternoon. The talk buzzed along briskly, fans waved and the daughter of the house kept twitting time unaccountably, rowing and musing little smothered exclamations of annoyance. Finally, with a sigh, she rose and left the room.

"Your daughter," said the visitor, "seems to be suffering from the heat."

"No," said the hostess. "She is just back home from college, and she is suffering from the family grammar."

SIX COLLEGE CLUBHOUSE.

Joint Building For Organizations of Alumni of New England Institutions.

A nine story building in New York for college men, the lower third of which will be common to the New York graduates of six New England institutions and the other six-thirds apportioned to each species, to the graduates of each of the institutions, is the latest idea in clubhouses, says the New York Tribune.

The originator of the plan, Alston Sargent, secretary of the club of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in East Twenty-eighth street, says it has been received with enthusiasm by New York graduates of the six institutions—Amherst, Brown, Dartmouth, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Wesleyan and Williams. The New York men who have attended each of them now have clubs of their own, the average membership of which is about 800. That number makes a good sized club, but not large enough to provide the advantages of the houses of the Harvard, Yale and Princeton graduates.

Five hundred thousand dollars is the amount which it is planned to raise among the members of the six college clubs for the new building. With $500,000 to a club, this means that the composite New England organization would start out with a membership of 1,800, and those interested in the plan think that this number could easily be increased to 2,500 or 3,000. The additional members would be drawn from graduates of the institutions named who do not at present belong to the clubs bearing the name of their alma mater, but would do so if the proper facilities for a clubhouse were offered.

The site suggested for the house is in or near College row or Clubhouse alley, as West Forty-fourth street has come to be known. In the nine story building considered there would be room enough for billiard and snooker rooms, bowling alley, squash court, a large dining room, an assembly room and sleeping apartments. To these all members would have access, while a floor space would be reserved for the preservation of the half dozen college atmospheres. The maintenance of each of the college doors would be left to its frequenters, while the general administration of the building would be looked after by a house committee made up of representatives of each of the component clubs.

If the scheme proves to be a success, it is possible that it may be imitated by graduates of colleges with insufficient numbers to maintain a clubhouse themselves. There may be a New York Pacific Coast College club, a New York State University club and a Middle Western association.

Hard Times in Kansas.

The old days of grasshoppers and frosts are almost forgotten in the present Kansas of today, although a citizen of Codell, Earl Shamburg, has not yet forgotten a hard time he encountered. He says: "I was worn out and discouraged by coughing night and day, and could find no relief till I tried King's New Discovery. It took less than one bottle to completely cure me." The safest and most reliable cough and cold remedy and lung and throat healer ever discovered. Guaranteed by Severs Drug Co., 50-51, and 51, Trial bottle free.

Wonders of the Rainbows.

If it were not for the countless trillions of dust particles that float, separately, invisibly, in the atmosphere there could be no raindrops, snow crystals or hailstones. From a perfectly dustless atmosphere the moisture would drip in ceaseless rain without drought. The dust particles serve as nuclei about which the vapor gathers. The snow crystal is the most beautiful creation of the aerial moisture, and the hailstone is the most extraordinary. The heart of every hailstone is a tiny speck of dust. Such a speck, with a little moisture condensed about it, is the germ from which may be formed a hailstone capable of felling a man or smashing a window. But first it must be caught up by a current of air and carried to the level of the lofty cirrus clouds, five or six or even ten miles high. Then, continually growing by fresh accessions of moisture, it begins its long plunge to the earth, spinning through the clouds and flashing in the sun like a diamond ball shot from a rainbow.

The Educated Flee.

It was at a banquet. A rule had been agreed upon to the effect that every person called upon for a toast must respond with speech, song or story. As a last number on the important programme, a retiring sort of chap was called upon to do his part.

"I can't make a so-called speech," he stammered, "but I heard that seas could be trained to do tricks, and so once I tried to train one. Would you care to see him?"

A mare was cleared off in the center of the snowy tablecloth, and in the middle the owner set the small pillow he had taken from his vest pocket.
